INTRODUCTION

The Missouri Commission on Intergovernmental Cooperation was established to provide a centralized structure linking public entities to state government. The Commission serves as a vehicle of communication through which state and local governments can meet to discuss and resolve shared problems.

In order to enhance communication between governments this guide to executive branch agencies with the accompanying descriptions, organization charts, maps, and contact listing has been created. The executive branch consists of all state elective and appointive employees, except the officials of the legislative and judicial departments.

This booklet was compiled as an introduction to the organization and responsibilities of the sixteen departments of Missouri state government. Sources include the Missouri Official Manual, 1997-1998 and the official plans of state departments filed as required under Section 1 of the Omnibus State Reorganization Act of 1974, and RSMo 1979. Copies of this booklet are available from the Division of General Services, Intergovernmental Relations Unit, Room 915 Jefferson Building, P.O. Box 809, Jefferson City, Missouri 65102, 573/751-4834. Additional information about State of Missouri executive branch agencies is available from the contacts listed on page 59.

Special Note on State Departments' Administrative Duties.

All of the departments in Missouri state government contain at least one administrative division or unit which provides support in fiscal management, accounting, personnel and training, research and data processing. Because of similarity of these duties and because each department only has one page of print space, these units are not described in detail.

For more information on these divisions, contact the department director listed on page 60.

MISSOURI STATE GOVERNMENT

ELECTED OFFICIALS

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

The chief executive officer of the state of Missouri must be at least 30 years old, a U.S. citizen for 15 years or longer and a resident of Missouri for at least 10 years before being elected governor.

The governor is elected to a four-year term during the same year as a presidential election and may seek re-election to a second four-year term. No person may hold the office for more than two terms.

The governor appoints the members of all boards and commissions, the heads of all departments in state government and all vacancies in public offices unless otherwise provided by law. The board members of Missouri's state universities and colleges are appointed by the governor. The governor also selects the members of the Supreme and Appellate Courts of Missouri from names submitted by the State Judicial Commissions in addition to numerous other appointments.

The governor addresses the General Assembly on the state of government and recommends changes or other actions to be taken. A budget is submitted by the governor to the General Assembly within 30 days after the assembly convenes. The budget contains the governor's estimates of available state revenues and an itemized plan for proposed expenditures.

All bills passed by both houses of the legislature, except those referred to a vote of the people, are submitted to the governor for his consideration. The governor may either approve a bill, making it law, or return it to the legislature with his objections.

The governor performs many other duties assigned by constitution, statute or custom. The governor also has the power to grant reprieves, commutations and pardons, but this does not include the power to parole.

In addition to his other duties, the governor is a member of a number of boards and commissions, such as the Board of Public Buildings and State Board of Fund Commissioners.

Moreover, the governor is commander-in-chief of the state's militia, the Missouri National Guard.

OFFICE OF THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

The lieutenant governor is required to meet the same qualifications as the governor. The lieutenant governor is elected for a four-year term and is subject to re-election.

Under the constitution, the lieutenant governor is ex officio president of the Missouri Senate. Upon the death, conviction, impeachment, failure to qualify, resignation or other disabilities, the powers, duties and emoluments of the governor devolve upon the lieutenant governor until the end of his or her term or until the disabilities of the governor are removed. By law, the lieutenant governor serves as secretary and member of the Board of Public Buildings. Missouri voters passed Proposition C in November, 1992, expanding the lieutenant governor's duties to include membership on the Missouri Tourism Commission, the Board of Fund Commissioners, the Missouri Housing Development Commission, the Missouri Development Finance Board, and the Missouri Rural Economic Development Council. Proposition C also designates the lieutenant governor as official advocate for Missouri's senior citizens, and as advisor to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education on early childhood education. The lieutenant governor continues to serve as the state's ombudsman.

OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE

The secretary of state oversees one of the most diverse offices in state government. The office includes more than 12 divisions and maintains offices in the State Capitol, the James C. Kirkpatrick State Information Center (MSIC) and branches in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield.

The secretary of state is the chief election official in Missouri, bearing responsibility for administration of statewide elections involving both issues and individuals, and oversees local verification of petition signatures for initiative petitions. The secretary of state's commissions division authenticates official acts of the governor, and has the authority to appoint and commission notaries public.

The office is a clearinghouse of information. The State Archives preserves and makes available historic documents for use by researchers, including thousands of inquiries annually from genealogists. The Records Management program allows state agencies to store and retrieve inactive files at the MSIC. A companion Local Records program assists county and municipal governments in processing and safeguarding their important documents. The Publications Division produces a number of useful books and periodicals, including the Official Manual, the state Constitution, and rosters of the General Assembly and state, county and district officers. The Administrative Rules Division publishes the revisions to the Code of State Regulations monthly, which lists rules and regulations promulgated by state agencies, and the bi-monthly Missouri Register.

The Missouri State Library was created in 1946 as an independent agency with a board appointed by the governor. The major functions of the State Library are to provide direct library and information service in support of the executive and legislative branches of Missouri state government, to provide library service to blind and physically handicapped residents of Missouri and to promote the development and improvement of library services throughout the state. In July 1993, the State Library, including the Wolfner Library for the Blind and Handicapped, was placed under the supervision of the secretary of state.

Registration of businesses is another vital duty of the secretary of state. The Corporations Division handles the incorporation and reports for some 190,000 businesses licensed to do business in Missouri. The Franchise Tax Division collects more than $55 million annually from for-profit corporations. Perfecting liens on business loans is the responsibility of the Uniform

Commercial Code division, which receives some 137,000 filings each year. The Securities Division protects Missouri investors from fraud by reviewing proposed securities offerings and registering broker-dealers, agents and investment advisors.

OFFICE OF STATE AUDITOR

The state auditor's office is charged with auditing all state agencies, boards and commissions; all of the state's municipal and circuit courts; and 93 of the state's 114 counties. The state auditor may also be called upon by citizen petition to audit local political subdivisions. Audits are performed to determine if tax dollars are being spent efficiently, economically and legally and to determine how well governmental authorities protect against fraud and abuse of the public funds under their control.

In addition to fulfilling the primary auditing duties of the office, the state auditor is charged with designing accounting systems for state and local governments, approving depositories selected by the state treasurer and serving as a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners and the State Records Commission. The state auditor also examines and registers all general obligation bonds and reviews the tax rates levied by the state's political subdivisions to ensure they comply with state law.

OFFICE OF STATE TREASURER

The duties of the state treasurer, as defined by the Missouri Constitution are: (1) to be custodian of all state funds; (2) to determine the amount of state moneys not needed for current operating expenses; and (3) to invest such moneys not needed for current operations in time deposits, bearing interest, in Missouri banking institutions selected by the state treasurer and approved by the governor and state auditor, or in short-term U.S. government obligations.

The operation of the office of state treasurer is essentially a banking operation. To disburse state funds, a warrant is prepared in the Office of Administration. The warrant, with the signature of the commissioner of administration, is presented to the state treasurer's office for processing. When the warrant is signed by the treasurer, it is converted into a negotiable check, or draft, on a designated depository of state funds.

When investing state funds, the state treasurer is required to give due consideration to the preservation of such moneys, the comparative yield and the effect upon the economy and welfare of the people of Missouri.

The state treasurer is permitted to purchase short-term U.S. government obligations, maturing and becoming payable within one year from the date of purchase. Interest received on the investment of state funds is credited either to the general revenue fund or to the fund from which the investment is made.

The state treasurer administers the MISSOURI FIRST low interest linked deposit loan program for small business, agriculture, job creation, drought relief, student loans and multi-family housing. Through MISSOURI FIRST the state treasurer deposits funds in a Missouri financial institution at below market interest rates. The financial institution agrees to loan the amount of money at a reduced rate to businesses, farmers and students.

The state treasurer is a member of the State Board of Fund Commissioners, the Missouri Housing Development Commission, the board of trustees of the Missouri State Employees' Retirement System and the Missouri Arts Council.

OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

The attorney general's office was created in 1806 when Missouri was part of the Louisiana Territory. Missouri's first constitution (1820) provided for an appointed attorney general. Since the 1865 constitution, the attorney general has been elected.

The attorney general is the attorney for the state. He represents the legal interests of Missouri and its people as a group, but cannot represent individual citizens in private legal actions.

As the state's chief legal officer, the attorney general must prosecute or defend all appeals to which the state is a party, including every felony criminal case which is appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court and courts of appeal. He also is required to institute, in the name and on behalf of the state, all civil suits and other proceedings that are necessary to protect the state's rights, interests or claims. He also may appear, interplead, answer or defend any proceedings in which the state's interests are involved, or appear on behalf of the state in declaratory judgment proceedings when the constitutionality of a statute is challenged.

The attorney general renders official opinions to the General Assembly, the governor, secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, the heads of the various state departments and the circuit or prosecuting attorneys on questions of law relating to their duties.

The attorney general may institute quo warranto proceedings to oust any corporation from doing business in Missouri if it has abused its franchise or has violated the state's laws. He also may institute quo warranto proceedings against any person unlawfully holding any office or move to oust any public official for misfeasance, nonfeasance, or malfeasance in office.

He is a member of the Board of Fund Commissioners, Board of Public Buildings, the Governor's Committee on Interstate Cooperation, the Missouri Highway Reciprocity Commission and the Missouri Housing Development Commission. He serves as chairman of the Governor's Crime Commission.

In order to fulfill these and other responsibilities, the attorney general has organized his office into six divisions: Litigation, Criminal, Consumer Protection, Governmental Affairs, Environmental Protection and Labor.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Like Missouri agriculture, the duties of the Missouri Department of Agriculture are diverse. The department administers programs that prevent livestock disease, monitor commercial transactions involving weighing or metering devices, regulate grain storage and inspection, establish rules for labeling and using farm chemicals, control plant pests and oversee feed and seed sales. Other department programs range from licensing and inspecting livestock markets to educating youth in agriculture through scholarships, loans and career programs.

The Commission is charged with the control, management, restoration, conservation and regulation of the bird, fish, game, forestry and all wildlife resources of the state. The Commission appoints a director who serves as the administrative officer of the Department of Conservation.

Principal sources of revenue are derived from the sale of hunting and fishing permits, the dedicated conservation sales tax of one-eighth of one percent, and revenue from administration of forest, fish and wildlife resources. Substantial funding is made available on a matching basis through the federal government and is applied primarily to acquisition, development, research and forest fire control. The administrative structure is broken into three components.

Resource Management and Enforcement are responsible for assuring management and protection of Missouri's private and public aquatic and terrestrial resources, providing well-rounded programs involving fish, wildlife and forest resources. Forestry, Fisheries and Wildlife Divisions administer management of Department areas, programs and research to meet this mandate. Management is regionally-based taking into consideration geographic variables in wildlife resources, natural resources, economic factors, and land composition. DEPARTMENT OF HIGHER EDUCATION

The Coordinating Board for Higher Education is the statutory authority over the Department of Higher Education. The nine members, one from each congressional district, are appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate for six-year terms. The commissioner of higher education is appointed by the Coordinating Board to carry out the goals and administrative responsibilities for the state's higher education system – with 13 public four-year colleges and universities, 17 public two-year community colleges, 1 public two-year technical college, 26 independent colleges and universities, and 120 proprietary schools. The commissioner advises the board on policies, implements and administers all programs of statutory responsibility, and oversees the operations of the department.

The department is responsible for the development of a coordinated, statewide plan for higher education. The Coordinating Board adopted the current strategic plan, known as the Blueprint for Missouri Higher Education, in June, 1996. The Blueprint includes five strategic initiatives: postsecondary technical education, telecommunications, and information technology, Funding for Results, institutional mission review and enhancement, and student assistance (Missouri Student Assistance Resource Services – MOSTARS).

The primary divisions of the department, and their responsibilities, are listed below:

Academic Affairs approves new academic programs through a systematic review each year. In addition, mission reviews of all public colleges and universities are conducted on a five-year cycle.

Community Colleges/Technical Education works with the state's 12 community colleges and the one state technical college to coordinate the statewide delivery of postsecondary technical education and out-of-district educational programs.

Fiscal Affairs reviews public college and university budgets and expenditures, submits a unified higher education budget based on statewide plans and priorities to the governor and legislature, and recommends and prioritizes capital improvement projects at public institutions.

DEPARTMENT OF INSURANCE

The Missouri Department of Insurance was created by constitutional amendment effective July 1, 1991. The newly created department is charged with the regulation of the insurance industry and the administration of laws and regulations relating to insurance in the state. The department's primary responsibility is to protect the consumer by regulating and supervising the insurance companies, agencies, agents, and brokers operating in Missouri.

The Department is organized with the following divisions:

Division of Financial Regulation is responsible for the financial analysis and examination of insurers operating in Missouri to verify their financial condition. In addition, the division ensures that the operations of the companies are in compliance with Missouri laws, department regulations, and accepted insurance accounting practices. The division is divided into three sections: financial examination, financial analysis, and taxation.

Division of Market Regulation functions to ensure that Missouri residents are receiving quality insurance coverage. The market conduct examination, property and casualty, life and health, managed care, and statistics sections are most directly involved in regulating the business activities of Missouri insurers.

Division of Consumer Affairs is made up of the consumer services and special investigations sections. The consumer services section responds to complaints and inquiries from the general public and operates as an intermediary between the consumer and insurance company in resolving disputes. The special investigations section is responsible for investigating alleged fraud, as well as problems involving agents, brokers, and agencies.

Division of Resource Administration coordinates the activities within the department relating to administrative operations and provides support for the other division within the department. The licensing section, which handles agent and broker licensing, is also within the division. The division of resource administration includes the licensing, management information systems, budget and support services sections.

Since its inception, the Department of Insurance has been dedicated to providing services for the consumer and the insurers of the state to ensure that companies are properly supervised and operating safely for the protection of the consumer.

DEPARTMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH

The Missouri Department of Mental Health serves Missourians by working to prevent substance abuse, mental disorders, and developmental disabilities; by rehabilitating, treating, and habilitating persons with those conditions; and by educating the public about mental health.

The department benefits from the counsel of a seven-member citizen commission, which makes major policy and budgetary decisions for the department, including hiring the director. The members of the Mental Health Commission, who are appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate, are selected for their concerns and expertise in the various facets of mental health care.

The department is divided into three program divisions and five offices that support the work of the program divisions. The department operates 27 facilities and contracts with more than 1,000 private agencies to provide community-based care.

Division of Alcohol and Drug Abuse plans and funds an array of prevention, treatment, and rehabilitation programs for alcohol- and drug-dependent Missourians and provides outpatient treatment services to compulsive gamblers and their families. The division operates no facilities of its own, but instead contracts with community agencies and mental health centers to provide detoxification services, residential and non-residential services and prevention programs.

Division of Comprehensive Psychiatric Services plans, provides and funds prevention, evaluation and treatment services for Missourians diagnosed as mentally ill. The division operates ten facilities, including five that serve adults, two that serve children, and three that serve both adults and children.

It protects Missouri's environment, deals with the critical area of energy, helps develop mineral resources, and works to preserve the state's historic and cultural heritage. The goal of the department is to ensure capable planning, management and utilization of Missouri's natural resources. The director, who is appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate, is the chief executive officer and appointing authority of the department. You may contact the department by calling toll free 1-800-334-6946 for the Division of State Parks, and 1-800-361-4827 for Environmental Technical Assistance. The department consists of five divisions.

Division of State Parks administers Missouri's 80 state parks and historic sites. The mission of the state parks system is to preserve and interpret the state's most outstanding features and cultural landmarks and to provide recreation. The division also administers state and federal funds to help communities develop public recreation facilities, and the Historic Preservation Program, which administers federal funds to help identify and preserve historic properties throughout the state.

Division of Geology and Land Survey's responsibilities include protecting Missouri's water mineral and land resources and overseeing their potential use and development. The division provides land survey information and restores land survey monuments. It also ensures that all new and existing non-agricultural, non-federal dams 35 feet or more in height meet minimum safety standards, and provides information about potential geologic hazards such as earthquakes.

Division of Environmental Quality (DEQ) strives to protect the environment, the public health and the economic well-being of Missourians by preserving and improving the quality of the state's air, land and water. Six regional offices are located in Jefferson City, Kansas City, Macon, Poplar Bluff, Springfield, and St. Louis.

Division of Energy helps all energy-using sectors to choose and use energy resources as economically and efficiently as possible. The state has an important role to plan in energy policy and programming because the production, distribution, and use of energy is the single greatest public sources of environmental and health problems.

Environmental Improvement and Energy Resources Authority (EIERA) was established by the Missouri General Assembly to protect Missouri's environment, develop energy alternatives, and promote economic development. The EIERA's mandate is broad and through tax-exempt bonds, notes, and other types of financial assistance, can support environmental projects for businesses, institutions, municipalities, and government agencies. The EIERA offers low-cost financing for the construction of wastewater and sewage treatment facilities; provides financial assistance for the development of commercial products from recovered waste; and promotes energy resource projects and educational programs.
